

IS TO REDUCE RAILWAY FARE

Railway Commission Announces Decision Of Two And A Half Cent A Mile Rate.

USES UP MUCH SPACE IN DECISION

One Hundred Thousand Words Are Necessary To Tell The Public What It Wants. Them To Understand.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, Wis., Feb. 18.—A flat reduction of passenger rates in Wisconsin is ordered by the state railroad rate commission in a decision of over 100,000 words, issued today.

The present maximum rate of three cents a mile is reduced to two and a half cents a mile. This order is the result of a most thorough investigation and a long series of hearings extending over nearly a year. The demand for lower passenger rates was made individually by a number of citizens, including Walter L. Houser of Mondovi, former secretary of state and now a candidate for the United States senate. These complaints described the present three-cent rate as unreasonably high and therefore unlawful, and demanded a reduction to two cents a mile. In making the reduction of half a cent, the commission gives its reasons in voluminous argument and cautions the state legislature against attempting at this time to carry the reduction to two cents a mile, suggesting that such action would be unable to stand the test of judicial inquiry.

The commission carefully calculated the cost of passenger service, as separate from freight service, and arrived at the conclusion that to apply a flat rate of two cents a mile would be unconstitutional for the reason that such a rate would be unprofitable and therefore confiscatory of the property of the railroads. Another reason is that if the rate were lowered to the point demanded, it would be necessary to draw from freight earnings in order to maintain passenger service, even though the rate should happen to stand in court, and the commission holds it is inequitable for the person who pays freight, either directly or indirectly, should be burdened with persons who ride a little cheaper.

The Wisconsin commission is looked upon as an exceptionally strong body. It is comprised of Attorney John Barnes of Rhinelander, one of the leading lawyers of the state; Professor B. H. Meyer, member of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin and an eminent authority on railroad economy; and Harold Erickson, formerly a practical railroad man and of recent years Wisconsin commissioner of labor and industrial statistics. It is thought that the argument of the commission with the warnings it contains will deter the legislature, now in session, from attempting further reduction, although dozens of two-cent and one-cent-and-a-half bills are before the committees on transportation. Some members are for a flat two-cent rate, but this sentiment does not prevail. It is apparent that the legislature generally is disposed to accept the decision of the commission as sufficient for the present time, rather than to hazard more reduction and a possible legal undoing of any change from the present rates.

The commission, on this point, fortifies its action in making the rate 2½ cents rather than two cents, using the following language:

"If at any future time it appears to the commission that the earnings would justify reductions beyond those now made, we have, of course, the right to make them."

The commission also suggests that the roads themselves grant a two-cent rate in certain cases, one case being the selling of a family mileage book of 500 miles for $10, and it is evident that the commission, while the decision is in the form of an order to the railroads, is addressing the people of companies, state and promising further reductions when the time shall arrive when they shall be warranted. "This statement," says the decision, "is in no sense to be considered as a threat or an attempt to do by indirect means what neither the commission nor the legislature could do directly. We simply make the recommendation (that family mileage books for 500 miles be sold for $10) which we hope will commend itself to the good sense and judgment of the carriers affected thereby and to the traveling public which will receive the benefit thereof."

Accompanying the decision are a number of large tables of statistics, presenting the data upon which the commission based its action. While the decision applies to the railroads of the state generally, this is only because it was known that all the roads would accept it. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road was the only one to make a fight against the reduction proposal, and it was understood that this was pursuant to an arrangement between the roads, that this company should make the formal fight and the result would be abided by all the others. Instead of all of them going through the long process of hearings and examinations. The commission determines that the St. Paul company carries an average of 78,634,233 passengers one mile per year, in intra-state traffic and that the average revenue per mile is 2.299 cents per mile. This was arrived at after all the most endless calculations, and the maximum three-cent rate was outlawed.

While this decision will affect the rates over practically the entire state, by reason of competitive results, the lower rate will not be compulsory as to the Wisconsin Central, Green Bay & Western, the "Soo" and other smaller roads. Just now it applies to the St. Paul road, the Northwestern, the Omaha and the Burlington. Of course, any and all of the competing roads will have to reduce their rates in order to hold their share of the traffic, so the decision will affect all the roads as a matter of fact.

In the great mass of statistics, it is difficult to read clearly just the process of reasoning by which the commission arrived at the decision that three cents a mile is unlawful because excessive, but in the many pages of language that make up the verbal part of the document, it is plain that the commission recognizes that the state is demanding two-cent rates for passenger traffic, and much of the document is a strong defense of the refusal of the commission to make the rate two cents a mile.

In brief, the commission determined the total revenue to the roads from all sources, then separated and divided this revenue so as to ascertain what came from traffic wholly within the state, as the jurisdiction of the commission does not go to interstate traffic. Then the cost of the traffic was determined and the cost and the revenue compared. The main reason given for not reducing the rate to two cents is that in order to do so would require the freight business to bear some of the cost of passenger traffic.

"From the standpoint of equity," says the commission, "there is no jurisdiction for making the passenger contribute toward the carrying cost of freight. No more is there any jurisdiction for making the shipper of freight contribute to the carrying cost of passengers. The imposition of a tax upon the users of one class of service for the benefit of those who use another class of service is not consonant with reason and fair dealing. We believe that not one good economic argument can be urged in favor of making the shipper pay a portion of the carrying cost of the passenger. Low freight rates are vastly more important to the people of the state than low passenger rates."

Pages and pages of the report are taken up with strong arguments in support of this proposition.

Much Touted Australian Heavyweight Fighter Will Be in Frisco Two Weeks Hence.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] San Francisco, Calif., Feb. 18.—American ring followers are soon to have an opportunity of forming their own judgment regarding the prowess of Bill Squires, who has been mentioned much of late as a possible opponent of Jeffries in a fight for the heavyweight championship. According to advices from Sydney, the Australian fighter sails from that port today for this city on the steamer Ventura. He is accompanied by his backer and manager Jack Wren, and the two should reach San Francisco within two weeks. On his arrival efforts will be made to again take up the negotiations for a battle with Jeffries. Failing this the fight promoters will probably match Squires with Burns O'Brien or one of the other men who can battle in the heavyweight class.

GROSVENOR'S EXIT IS MADE PLEASANT

Twenty Years of Service in Congress Appreciated by All But Constituents.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Representative Grosvenor of Ohio, who is to retire from congress March 4 after a service of 20 years, is to be the guest of honor at a number of social functions in the near future, planned to make his last days in Washington pleasant. A dinner has been arranged for tonight by Col. Neale, who represents one of the transatlantic steamship companies, as a testimonial to Gen. Grosvenor's consistent efforts in behalf of ship-subsidy legislation. The Ohio delegation in congress has already honored Gen. Grosvenor with a dinner and next Saturday night a democratic function will be given for him, at which Representative Champ Clark of Missouri will be master of ceremonies.

THAW SAID WHITE HAD HIRED GANG TO KICK HIM TO DEATH

According to the Testimony of Dr. B. D. Evans Who Was on the Stand This Morning.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Feb. 18.—Dr. B. D. Evans was the first witness in the Thaw trial today. He said that Thaw told him on his first visit that he had wanted to kill White, but had sought to bring him to trial and to justice; that he would rather have this humiliated him. "But this was an act of Providence," the prisoner had continued, Thaw told Evans that White had hired the "Monk" Eastman gang to kick him to death.

Evans said that Thaw in his conversations referred to White as a "creature, beast, and blackguard," that he declared White had drugged and ruined a great number of pure-minded, innocent girls; that his lawyers were in a conspiracy to keep White's alleged wrongs from the public; that before the shooting he conferred with Anthony Comstock, Jerome, and a private detective agency concerning White; that Jerome had told him to drop the matter as there was nothing to it; that he discovered Delancy Nicoll was acting as attorney both for White and Comstock; that he carried a revolver on advice of Detective O'Mara, after he (Thaw) had told the detectives that hired agents of White had attempted to engage him in street rows. Evans again declared that in his opinion Thaw was insane at the time of his visit.

Dr. Wagner, who last week testified that Thaw was insane, was recalled to give the conversation he had with the prisoner. He told practically the same story as did Evans, agreeing with the latter's conclusion that Thaw's idea that he was acting as an agent of Providence in killing White was an insane delusion. A recess was then taken.

After the recess Evans was recalled and was shown Thaw's will. When he finished reading the codicil to the will Delmas asked him if the names mentioned therein were the same as those Thaw gave the witness as victims of White's practice. Jerome objected to the question and a long colloquy between the lawyers ensued. When Evans finished reading the will he said it was his opinion that Thaw was of unsound mind when he executed both the will and codicil. The codicil to Thaw's will was admitted and read.

Portion of Will Read.

Jerome permitted reading the provision in the will setting aside $50,000 for the prosecution of any persons who might be suspected of having aided in Thaw's death by violence. The codicil leaves $7,500 for obtaining legal redress against White and another sum for four young women. Thaw's will was admitted as evidence.

SENATOR BRYANT DIED IN MADISON SATURDAY NIGHT

Man Who Brought Senator La Follette Into The Political Field, Passed Away.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, Wis., Feb. 19.—Gen. George E. Bryant, the venerable public official and veteran of the civil war, who died at his home here Saturday night, made all arrangements for his funeral some time prior to his death. He selected former Gov. W. D. Hoard of Fort Atkinson to deliver his funeral address and secured his promise to do so. He requested his comrades of the Fairchild G. A. R. post to take charge of the funeral, and he named the persons he desired to act as pallbearers and to sing at the services. These persons have all been notified of the general's death and have signified their intention of complying with his wishes.

Gen. Bryant was born in Templeton, Worcester county, Mass., February 11, 1832, son of George W. and Eunice Norcross Bryant. His ancestors for several generations resided in New England, the paternal branch being Irish and the maternal English. Representative of both branches fought in the Revolutionary war. Gen. Bryant's father was a mechanic and farmer in moderate circumstances, but gave his son a good education and after preparing for college in the Black River academy, at Ludlow, Vt., young George took the full course at Norwich university, Vt., a military college, where Gen. Dodge and Ransom were classmates and Admiral George W. Dewey was a roommate. He then studied law in the office of Norcross & Snow of Fitchburg, Mass., and was admitted to the bar in 1856.

He at once came west and located at Madison, Wis., forming a partnership with Myron H. Otton, which lasted until the outbreak of the civil war in 1861. He had become connected with local militia and on the outbreak of the war was made captain of the Madison guards, a volunteer organization which had been formed in the winter of 1857-58. Its services had been tendered to Gov. Randall as early as January 9, 1861, and this tender was accepted by April 10, 1861, it being the first company accepted in Wisconsin for active service. It was assigned as Co. E of the First Wisconsin volunteer infantry and participated in the battle of Falling Waters.

The company served five months and Gen. Bryant was made colonel of the Tenth Wisconsin. This command went to Indian Territory, marching across the plains to Ft. Riley, then descending the Mississippi to Columbus, to join Gen. Grant of Corinth. From July 21, 1864, until November 4, 1864, he commanded the First brigade, Third division, Seventeenth army corps, a brigade that was never driven from a position and never failed to take one when ordered.

While in the service, Gen. Bryant participated in Sherman's famous march to the sea. When he was mustered out at Louisville in November, 1864, he was so ill that in his own words he "hardly expected to reach Madison alive." He returned to his farm near Madison and engaged in the raising of fine blooded stock. He is well known to breeders of horses and cattle, especially through his frequent articles in the agricultural press upon the origin and worth of the Morgan and Clay Pilot horses.

Postmaster Under Arthur.

Gen. Bryant served twelve years as judge of Dane county, being first elected in 1866. He was state senator in 1875-76 and member of the Assembly 1879-1900. In 1878 he became secretary of the state agricultural society and served for five years. For six years, during the term of Gov. Ludington and Smith, he was quartermaster general of the state with the rank of brigadier-general and it is from this that he derived his title of general. He was a delegate to many state and other political conventions and was a delegate to the national republican convention in Chicago, being one of the "306" who remained steadfast to Gen. Grant to the end. At the state convention in 1890 he placed in nomination W. D. Hoard, who was nominated and he also presented the name of R. M. La Follette to another.

In 1892 he was appointed postmaster of Madison by President Arthur and during his term he raised the office from second to first class. He was appointed to the same position by President Harrison. Gen. Bryant was for many years a member of the republican state central committee and from 1900 to 1904 was its chairman. Since 1900 he has been superintendent of public property. In religion Gen. Bryant is a Unitarian.

Gen. Bryant was married to Susan A. Gibson, a native of Fitchburg, Mass., September 27, 1858. They had three children, Hattie E., George E., and Frank.

Carried Dinner Pail as Judge.

Gen. Bryant is a remarkable man in two respects at least. He has held public office practically all his life after attaining his majority. In addition to this he is a successful farmer, though giving scant attention to his farm.

"I do my farming nights and Sundays," said he to a friend, yet he was a progressive, if not always methodical, farmer. Gen. Bryant always made his home on his farm and during the twelve years that he was county judge his habit invariably was to drive from his farm to the courthouse in the morning, bringing his dinner in a pail, and drive home in the evening.

He "discovered" La Follette.

Gen. Bryant is one of the most careful politicians the state has ever known. For a half century the inside workings of the republican machine, state and local, have felt the influence of his fine hand. He was the first to recognize the political possibilities in Senator R. M. La Follette, picking him up as soon as the latter left the university and pressing him forward with unwavering loyalty and confidence since. "He is known as the political godfather of La Follette and a friendship deep and beautiful has existed between them from that early day."

GOVERNMENT WILL TEST TWO SUBMARINE BOATS

Holland And Lake Types Will Compete For Approval Of United States Naval Authorities.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—During the present week, according to the arrangements of the navy department, competitive tests of submarine torpedo boats will be conducted in Narragansett Bay, the results of which will go far to determine the future course of the United States in regard to the adoption of this type of war craft. For these tests congress last year appropriated $1,000,000 and a special board, of which Captain Adolph Marx, U. S. N., is president, has been appointed to try out the competing boats, giving a week or more of time to tests of each boat.

The Octopus of the Holland type and a craft which was built by the inventor, Simon Lake, at Newport News, are to be the competing boats in the opinion of the board it is not practicable to have simultaneous competitive tests. The speed trials will be over a measured course of one mile in three conditions of the vessels, that is: "In the light condition," with all ballast tanks empty; in the "awash" condition; with the vessels showing not more than half of the conning towers; and in the "submerged" condition, with the conning tower not less than ten feet below the surface.

The boats will be put through all sorts of maneuvers, the time and the nature of the performance of each being noted by the board. The vessels' behavior in seaway also will be determined. In a submerged row, each vessel will discharge all of her torpedoes at a suitable target, observations on the target being made without coming to the surface. There will also be tests in regard to cable and mining work. The trials are expected to continue for several weeks.

COMMITTEE WILL PROBE THE ROAD

HEYBURN'S RESOLUTION WILL CAUSE MUCH TROUBLE.

THE TALK OF DIFFERENCES

Much Other Gossip on Transportation Matters in Congress.

(Special Correspondence.)
Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—The introduction by Senator Heyburn of Idaho of a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of five senators to inquire into the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Railroad company led to the circulation of the rumor that Mr. Heyburn was the author of the bill. The rumor was quickly dispelled by the news that the bill was introduced by Senator Harrison. Heyburn, however, has not been without interest in the matter, and he has introduced a resolution of inquiry at the request of a representative of the minority stockholders in the Northern Pacific corporation. "There is no foundation whatever for the suggestion that I favor the Harrison lines in the northwest, and that it opened up another war between the Hill-Morgan and the Harrison-Rockefeller combinations," Senator Heyburn emphatically denies that he has any interest in either of the combinations, and says that he introduced the resolution of inquiry at the request of a representative of the minority stockholders in the Northern Pacific corporation. "There is no foundation whatever for the suggestion that I favor the Harrison lines and interests," said Mr. Heyburn, in an interview. "I introduced the resolution at the request of a representative of the minority stockholders, who was practically a stranger to me, except that he came properly endorsed as to good standing. The resolution was referred to the committee on Pacific railroads, the chairman of which has advised me that at an early date a hearing will be given persons representing the minority stockholders of the old Northern Pacific corporation. They no doubt will fully develop the purpose of the inquiry, and the condition of affairs that brought about the introduction of the resolution will be made known. Neither Mr. Harrison, nor anybody representing him, nor his interests have spoken to me in regard to the resolution or its purpose.
I have no connection or interest, whatsoever, with any of the railroads involved in the matter. The resolution shall take care at the proper time if I am called upon to speak further on the subject, to make known my connection with the matter fully."

The contest over the $3,000,000 appropriation which congress proposes to make for submarines will appar-

of years one company has had a monopoly of the government work, but now that the prize has grown to lucious proportions other eyes fastened on it and the winner will know he has been in a fight. The Electric Boat company, which succeeded the old Columbia Submarine company, is the leader in the contest. As it has supplied all government submarines, it date it has the advantage of a corps of skilled workmen, and experience in building. Next comes the lake that if they do, their lives will be ruined? Some people cannot help it, for pessimism usually comes of bodily ills, disorders, and this cannot always be prevented. The stomach, for instance, is the most common cause of discontent, sour face, recklessness, disgust and lack of ambition. A bad stomach here is the secret of many a failure. Anyone can have a good stomach, a strong strong stomach, a stomach that can take anything that is put into it, no matter whether it is a very bad stomach now or not. Then why not have it?

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do this very thing. One ingredient of these little tablets digests 3,000 grains of food and no matter how bad is your dyspepsia or indigestion, these tablets will digest everything in your thoroughly and completely, and better and quicker than a healthy stomach can do the same thing. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure quickly loss of appetite, brash, irritation, burning sensations, nausea, heartburn, eructations, loss of vim and spirit, bad memory, and dyspepsia and indigestion in their very worst forms.
No other little tablets in the world can do so much. You should carry Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets around with you wherever you go and take them after meals. Then only will you realize what it is to enjoy a meal, and what perfect digestion means. Your whole body and your mind will feel the effects; your vim will increase,
you will be more satisfied with what
the world does, you will think happier and be happier and your face will be one of supreme contentment. That will bring you success and then more success. Your face will bring you dollars. Try it. It will cost you just 50c for a package of these wonderful Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, at any drug store on earth.
Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address boat which has been knocking at the doors of congress for five or six years, but in vain. This boat is always going to outdo those of the Electric Boat company, but for some reason a comparative test is never pulled off.

Then there is the new Holland company. Holland invented the boat first bought by the government, and subsequent United States submarines have been developed from his idea.
He had a split with his backers and is not featured by a rival company.
Another proposition is advanced by the Hektor Submarine Boat company of Newark, New Jersey. The principle is described as a "cylindrical chamber of any given size in which there is an air chamber to give buoyancy to the apparatus. By means of a plunger in each end of the air chamber is decreased in size, the air compressed and water taken into the device for ballast to sink the submarine.
When it is desired to come to the surface, the air chamber is extended to its normal size, the water expelled from each end of the submarine comes to the surface at the will of the operator." Quite an ingenious idea. The water being admitted compresses the air and the boat goes down. The water being expelled the air expands and the boat comes up! No loss of either air or water.
"One man submarine which exploited several years ago, has dropped out of sight. That idea was for a small boat like an enlarged torpedo. The single operator, resting in a semi-reclining position, pedaling with his feet, thus operating the steering the craft and in launching the torpedo at the proper moment.
Simplicity, cheapness, and the fact that if the boat was lost only one man went with it, were the claims urged in behalf of this invention. All submarine companies are more or less equipped with active representatives in this city, looking after their interests before congress and the Navy department.

S. MILLER KENT IN A DETECTIVE PLAY

"Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman" Pleased Two Large Audiences at the Myers Theatre.
S. Miller Kent and his company played two large audiences at the matinee and evening performances, Saturday, of "Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman." The play is based on a series of sketches published in two volumes by E. W. Hornung and Eugene Presbury was the playwright,
the one taken for presentation.
The title-role is played by the debonair burglar who is called "Raffes," who is called "Raffles" by sheer love of its dangers and the ingenuity and resourcefulness which can be brought to bear to outwit the guardians of law. Kent proves himself an able successor to Kyrle Bell in the part and in Frank McCormack, the detective, and Lillian Rhodes, as "Gwendoline Conway," the inevitable girl who loves the cracksman—he has excellent support. The minor parts are also well taken.

HOBO LIFE AT THE
AGE OF THIRTEEN

Ray Knapp, a Hayward Boy, Picked up at the Passenger Station by Officer Bear.

Officer Robert Bear picked up a thirteen-year-old boy giving his name as Ray Knapp and his home as Hayward, Wis., at the Northwestern passenger station Saturday evening. The lad claimed to have walked here from Evansville and was looking for shelter.
According to his story he got aboard a box car at Hayward, was locked in atter the train started, and was unable to escape until the train reached Madison 48 hours later. From the capital city he stole a ride to Evansville. An arrangement will probably be made to send the boy back to his home.

Hannah et al vs. H. P. Saxon; State of Wisconsin et al rel. Geo. Lutz vs.
C. D. Rosa, Municipal Judge; in the matter of the Petition of the Beloit, Delaware Lake & Janesville Ry. Co.
The Rudolph vs. Hutchinson action is the test case to determine whether or not Janesville's junior aldermen are entitled to the $5 a meeting compensation. The action against Judge Rosa is the outcome of his having taxed the costs again a party who swore a warrant of arrest and battery and then withdrew his complaint when he found that he would have to employ his own attorney to prosecute the case.
The court took the withdrawal of the case as evidence that it had not just foundation and taxed the $3 or $4 costs to the complainant. The latter now seeks to recover the same.

HIT ON FOREHEAD
BY HEAVY IRON BAR

John McDermott Congratulating Himself on Escape from Instantaneous Death.

While at work in the North-Western railway company's cinder pit this morning, John McDermott was the victim of an accident which might have been very serious. A heavy bar of iron, known as the equalizer, a portion of a pneumatic cinder hoist, caught under the box of a gondola as the bar was being raised, and before the air could be shut off, lifted the car and then suddenly loosened. It struck back and struck McDermott over the right eye, while a large hook hit him on the upper jaw. A deep cut was made in his forehead and several teeth were loosened. He visited the office of Dr. E. F. Woods, and four stitches were taken in his forehead. As a result of the mishap he will be off duty for a number of days.

LIFE WAS SAVED BY RAPIDITY OF FALL

Giving Way of "Run" Between Two Freight Cars Dropped Harry.
Sheldon to Ground.

Harry Sheldon, an employee at the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul freight depot, fell between two freight cars
this morning and suffered a fracture of the left shoulder bone. He was engaged in "trucking" a huge box of dry goods from one car to another, when in some manner the "run" between two cars gave way and dropped him to the ground. The truck and box, which weighed several hundred pounds, followed him. The truck struck him on the shoulder but he himself had been thrown so rapidly that he escaped from under the box.
Had his fall been slow he would probably have been killed instantly or injured fatally.

Been Subscribed.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Evansville, Feb. 18.—There were about fifty present at the meeting held in the city hall last Thursday evening to consider the advisability of organizing a Y. M. C. A. in this city. "Our businessmen and others are showing a deep interest in this matter and a sufficient number have pledged themselves to help, not only financially, but also by their influence to carry the work forward. Two hundred dollars annually has already been subscribed, and a committee consisting of Erwin Meyers, chairman, Carl Gray, Frank Hubbard, John Hendricks and R. M. Richmond, was appointed to push the matter of getting members and securing a room.
The first step will be to organize a young men's gymnasium club, and the committee have the promise of a room 100 feet by 30 feet to be used for that purpose.

Entertained at Dinner.
Mr. and Mrs. Yerns Axell, entertained about thirty guests at their home Friday evening. The rooms were elaborately decorated with flowers, festoons of hearts in red and white, and candles in various colors.
A four-course dinner was served and numerous games were provided for the amusement of the guests. All enjoyed the occasion.

Illustrated Lecture.
Principal M. J. Fenenga of North Wisconsin academy spoke to an appreciative audience in the Congregational church Sunday morning and in the evening gave a stereopticon lecture on "The Pilgrims of North Wisconsin."

Charles Curtis

"Hon. Charles Curtis, who has entered the United States senate in place of former Senator, Burton of Kansas, was born at North Topeka, Shawnee county, Kan., on January 25, 1850. He is a half-blood Kew Indian. He received a common school education and then studied law, being finally admitted to the bar in 1883. Senator Curtis married Miss Annie E. Baird of Topeka, Kan., on November 27, 1884. His first political post was that of attorney for Shawnee county from 1884 to 1888. He was elected to congress in 1893 and served in one district until 1899. He was re-elected from another district in 1899 and was retained in this seat until made senator. Senator Curtis makes his home at Topeka, Kan.

..Forty Years Ago..

Janesville Daily Gazette, Monday, February 18, 1867.—Another Fire.—Our city was the scene of another conflagration early on Sunday morning.

At about 12 o'clock a fire was discovered in the rear end of the barn occupied by Messrs. Carter & Fember as a livery stable, on Franklin street. The flames spread with great rapidity as the fire was communicated by an incendiary, to straw in the second story, through a small door which was open. The loft was full of hay, straw, oats and corn, and was but a few moments before the fire had obtained uncontrollable headway.

Although the alarm was immediately given with no little difficulty, the fire was with no little difficulty in number were let loose and driven pell-mell into the street, where they took to their heels and scattered over the city. The vehicles were all lost, as they were in a room by themselves and were probably overlooked by those who assisted in the removing of the goods.

From the barn the fire spread to a couple of small buildings on the south side owned by Mr. E. Call, one of which was occupied by himself as a jobbing shop, and the other by Mr. Westcott as a shoe shop. Most of their things were saved. On the north side a small barn owned and occupied by Messrs. Carter & Fember was destroyed. The drug store of Mr. Colwell was in imminent danger at one time, as was in fact the entire row of buildings fronting on Milwaukee street. Many of Mr. C's goods were removed and he sustained some damage. The barn occupied by Messrs. C. & P. was owned by Mrs. Prink and had been leased by these gentlemen for a term of five years. The loss in addition to their harness, some 200 bushels of oats, about the same amount of corn, besides hay and straw, involving loss of $1,000 or $1,200. They had an insurance of $1,000.

What is to be the end? In view of the frequency of fires and the evident fact that many of them are the work of incendiaries, all good citizens are asking the question—What is to be the end? Some measures should be instituted at once to prevent such a calamity.

That some one is actuated by fiendish motives is quite apparent as during the fire a length of hose belonging to engine No. 3 was left open with a knife for a distance of some six or eight inches.

Rumors. There were various rumors yesterday about of attempts to fire other buildings, and it was said that hay and straw had been discovered on fire underneath the wagon shop of Messrs. Sinton & Welford. We inquired of these gentlemen as to the truth of the story. They did not express a belief that there was an intent to burn their property, but informed us that they found a bundle of hay under their shop and that it was burning at the time it was discovered, but whether ignited by accident or design they could not say. They found the door of their workshop broken open, but for what purpose was not plain.

The occupants of the paint shop gave great credit to a young man named George Marshall, who worked with untiring perseverance in sweeping off the roofs of the shops and when questioned, replied without stopping his work, "I'm bound to save Jim's tools."—a friend it was afterwards ascertained who worked there.

Located. Again.—Messrs. Carter & Fember have rented the Myers House barn and are ready for business again.

Arrested for Refusing to Work at the Brakes.—Several men were arrested at the Sunday morning fire for refusing to work on the brakes.

EVENTS OF THE PRESENT WEEK

SENATE AND HOUSE TO BE BUSY WITH BUDGETS.

ARE A WEEK BEHIND TIME

Vote on Smoot Expulsion Comes Wednesday — President Roosevelt to Visit His Sons.

Appropriation bills will, during the present week, continue to command the greater part of the time of both the senate and the house, but they will not be allowed to crowd everything else to the wall in either chamber. The house will begin the week Monday by passing several bills under suspension of the rules, and if the present plan prevails, the last two days of the week will be devoted to the ship subsidy bill.

In the senate the resolution providing for the expulsion of Senator Smoot will be voted upon at 4 p. m. on Wednesday, and there will be considerable debate on the resolution before the vote is reached. Senator Smoot himself is on the program for an extended address in which he is expected to outline his attitude as between the Mormon church and the national government, and he will be supported in speeches by Senators Dillingham, Beveridge and Foraker, the latter closing in behalf of Mr. Smoot. The final argument in opposition will be made by Senator Burrows. It is generally admitted that Senator Smoot will be sustained by a large majority.

Agricultural Bill in Senate.

At the earliest practicable moment the senate will resume consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill, and it is hoped that it may be disposed of on Monday or Tuesday, notwithstanding considerable debate is expected on the provision inserted by the committee, providing for the leasing of the grazed lands and on amendments which will be offered by Senators Beveridge and Hansbrough on the subject of meat inspection.

Senator Beveridge will renew his effort to secure the enactment of a law requiring the meat packers to put the date of canning on their packages and to transfer to the packers the cost of inspection, which is now paid by the government.

After devoting some time Monday to bills on the calendar, the house will proceed with its consideration of the post office appropriation bill, on which general debate will close at noon Tuesday. It is not probable, however, that the bill will be finally passed before a late hour on Thursday.

Behind Time With Budgets.

The general status of the appropriation bills is the subject of no little anxiety on the part of members of the house, who generally appreciate that they are about a week behind the average time on these measures. Of the 14 large budgets, 11 have already passed the house and two, the sundry civil and the general deficiency, have thus far failed to receive any attention whatever. Only six of the bills have received the sanction of the senate, and none has yet been approved by the president.

Both houses regard night sessions as among the strong probabilities for the latter part of this week and all expect to sit almost every night next week. A house session is expected next Sunday if the ship subsidy bill is still undisposed of at that time.

President to Visit Sons.

President Roosevelt will leave Washington late in the week for a brief visit to his sons, who are studying at Harvard University and the Groton school in Massachusetts. He will spend Saturday at Harvard and Sunday at Groton.

James Bryce, the new British ambassador to America, and Mrs. Bryce, are passengers on board the steamer Oceanic, which is due to reach New York Wednesday or Thursday.

The annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' association will open in New York city Monday, and continue through the week.

Veteran Steamboat Man Dies.

St. Louis, Feb. 18.—Capt. John N. Bollinger died at his residence, 76 Vandeventer place, Tuesday. He was 84 years old. During the civil war he had charge of the steamboat transportation of the union soldiers before the fall of Vicksburg. Previous to that time he was well known in steamboat circles.

Miners Are Fatally Injured.

Huntington, W. Va., Feb. 18.—Deaths were received here Sunday of a serious accident Saturday night at the Yuma mine at Monitor, near Logan, in which 12 men were frightfully injured, three fatally. The accident was due to a defect in the apparatus by which the bed of coal is given a shot. All the injured were foreigners.

Dean of Divinity School Dies.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Eli Baker Hubbard, dean of the University of Chicago Divinity school and head of the department of church history, died early Sunday in Wesley hospital. His death followed an attack of gall stones, complicated by pneumonia.

Three Boys Are Drowned.

Dixon, Ill., Feb. 18.—John Hilbert, Ralph Schertner and Lauren Nye, boys, broke through the ice and were drowned Saturday in Rock river.

Before The Footlights.

The well-known comedian, Arthur Dunn, will appear at the Myers Theatre on Monday, Feb. 25, in a new and entirely original musical comedy, "The Little Joker."

Mr. Dunn, who is, without a peer as a first class entertainer, will, in "The Little Joker," have a greater opportunity for the display of his many talents than ever before and it is safe to assert that, in his coming appearance he will be seen at his best. The supporting company will be composed of well-known artists, who have been especially engaged for their adaptability to portray the parts for which they have been assigned. There will be a number of catchy, fanciful songs rendered by the entire company, and, with this fact in view, the management has secured a company who are vocally of the highest order.

WHAT IS LABOR

John Graham Brooks in the Atlantic Monthly, reviewing recent socialistic literature, declares that our entire agricultural and industrial system is vicious in the sense that under it "labor does not get what it produces." Then he goes on to say that the farmer steals from his laborer, the railroad man from the brakeman, and the family "living gorgeously at the Waldorf-Astoria upon coal royalties, is a group of parasites sucking plentifully from the life blood of many miners."

In Mr. Brooks' phrase, "labor does not get what it produces," we find the heart of the socialistic economic system, if it may be called a system, says the Wall Street Journal. The socialistic philosophy of today rests upon the writings of Karl Marx, who declared that all wealth is due to labor, therefore all wealth ought to go to the laborer. This raises the question what is labor? Is labor only the work performed by the hands or does it also include the work performed by the brain? The Karl Marx philosophy is based upon the assumption that wealth is the product solely of manual labor. It is significant that W. H. Mallock, the well known English writer on economic questions, in his first lecture on socialism at Columbia university, strikes at once at this central idea of Marxism. It is a curious fact, shown by Mr. Mallock, that the idea that wealth is the product of manual labor has been supported by the writings of the orthodox economists. These tell us that wealth is produced by land, capital and labor. As to the gifts of nature through the soil there is no dispute. As to capital that is always represented as merely "stored up labor."

The economists apparently have not taken the trouble to give a clear definition of what labor is. In other words, the orthodox economists of today are incomplete in this respect. This is due to the fact, as stated by Mr. Mallock, that when the principle was laid down that labor was the only living human agency involved in the production of wealth, no one had any thought of isolating the labor of the average man and of contrasting it with an effort of a more conceptual kind.

The time has come, therefore, for a proper understanding of what labor is. The common acceptance of the term is that it stands for manual effort only. When we speak of the laborer we mean a man who works with his hands. If then it be accepted that wealth is entirely the product of manual labor, every person in the world who does not work with his hands is a parasite. The statesman, the clergyman, the lawyer, the doctor, the journalist, the dramatist, the poet, the merchant, the financier—all these are people who are living off of the labor of other persons and therefore have no proper place or value in the world. This of course is an absurdity, and hence the necessity of ascertaining at once what we mean by labor or rather to make a proper distinction between one class of labor and another. Of course a man who manages an industry is quite as much a creator of wealth as his subordinate who labors with his hands, although the manager himself is entirely relieved from manual labor. Karl Marx, in working with his brain, was as truly a laborer as any miner in the anthracite regions. The man attending a machine, whose only task is to raise one hand and then the other, does not produce as much wealth as the man who designed the machine, although the latter simply worked with his brain. Manual labor without mental direction and executive power possesses comparatively little value. Most of the wealth of the world has been produced by thinkers, by scientists, by inventors, by men of imagination and men of executive power.

Mr. Mallock's series of lectures are bound to attract widespread attention. He speaks with a lucidity of thought and a variety of illustration that give to his writings and lectures a charm not ordinarily possessed by economic literature.

AVERAGE LEGISLATURE
Samuel Merwin in Success has something to say about the average legislature that is interesting. He sums up the average man, who goes to the state capital to enact state laws in a concise way that is not far from the average Wisconsin legislator, but good enough to publish. He says:

"The legislature couldn't make one good law in three months, let alone three thousand without turning in some direction for aid and counsel. Our well-meaning farmers, and grocers, and manufacturers, are probably endowed with that profound ignorance of basic problems, which comes out in the form of a loud contempt for 'science' and 'theory.' But now they are, in the language of the committee room, up against it. They have got to make three thousand laws in three months, without much of an idea, in some cases, of what the blessed things are about. A good many of our farming and manufacturing friends would really like to make good laws; but probably not one of them is competent to draw a bill that will hold together. To make it worse, these laws, good or bad, will come down forcibly on every man, woman and child in the state.

"In view of this fact—that the legislature, made up of bungling, good-hearted amateurs, with a leavening of crooks, is bound to turn out just about so many laws anyway—do we citizens, the real interests most vitally affected by the mass of legislation, take any adequate measures either to put in able men, or to supply accurate and thorough-going information as a basis for the legislation? Not at all. We send our legislators down to the capital, and go on, serenely vague, about what we like to call 'our business.' The small's on the thorn, God's in his heaven, all's right with the world! And meanwhile the 'public service' company, and the big brewers and manufacturers are drawing up bills which our farming friends don't understand, and are crowding them through with doubtful statistics and specious reasoning which our farming friends may question, but which they have neither the time nor the resource to dispute."

The English dogs will have to look pert. They have passed a dog law under which every dog "wearing a starved expression of countenance" will be taken up. It makes no difference if he is wearing also a collar and proper tag. He must wear his face wreathed in smiles.

We notice that in Brooklyn two women claim one man as husband, prisoner being charged with deserting his family and marrying a wealthy man's daughter. My goodness! Is it possible that in Brooklyn, where a statesman demands a measure to protect the ring-necked pheasant, they haven't heard of the trial marriage?

A Scranton man says all the coal mined this year is so heavily charged with oil, that it burns like pitch pine. Mining experts say that this is due to earthquakes disturbing the strata. Keep it dark, or we'll have Mr. Baer charging us for both heat and light.

Mark Twain says Mrs. Eddy no more wrote "Science and Health" than Josh Billings wrote "Herbert Spencer's philosophies" or Jonathan Edwards wrote "Mr. Dooley." Still, there is no doubt, even in Mr. Clemens' mind who got the coin.

According to an Alabama contemporary, "Senator Hamburger made a gallant fight to save the newspapers from the provisions of the anti-pass bill but was finally compelled to yield his ground." Perhaps he didn't have it staked out right.

A gentleman from out the wild and woolly west has been acquitted of a charge of stealing a phonograph, on the plea that he was mentally unbalanced at the time. Besides, the jury held it isn't a crime to steal a phonograph; it's just a plain misfortune.

"It will take no longer to vote than to try on a hat," says a prominent woman suffragist. But if the women do not propose to vote faster than that, it will be necessary to keep the ballot boxes open for weeks instead of hours.

Count Boni de Castellane has been re-elected mayor, and will not commit suicide yet, but soon. The count's threat didn't seem to arouse the widespread apprehension and dismay he probably anticipated.

President Roosevelt says in his new book "Good Hunting," that "the big wolves shrink back before the growth of the thickly settled districts." But how about the big gray wolves of the senate?

We regret to report the defeat of the Kaiser's great and good lieutenant, Herr Schmidt of Bingen on the Rhine. We had a better opinion of dear old Bingen than that.

"It is much easier to tell the truth than to lie," says young Mr. Johnnie Rockefeller; from which it is an easy guess that little Johnnie isn't allowed to do the family swearing to the tax assessor.

"Atlanta, a small city," says the Chicago Post. The Post may recover from the combined onslaught of the Atlanta press, but we have no idea it will ever look like anything again.

The railroads are going to raise freight rates 10 per cent, in order to make up for the 10 per cent wage increase. Passing it on to the consumer as usual.

Mr. Carnegie is charged with an ambition to build a big university at Chicago to rival Mr. Rockefeller. We wonder if he will fill it with freak professors.

Chancellor Day says "the poor are lazy and drink too much." He seems fair to the average Wisconsin legislator, but good enough to publish. He says:

"The legislature couldn't make one good law in three months, let alone three thousand without turning in some direction for aid and counsel. Our well-meaning farmers, and grocers, and manufacturers, are probably endowed with that profound ignorance of basic problems, which comes out in the form of a loud contempt for 'science' and 'theory.' But now they are, in the language of the committee room, up against it. They have got to make three thousand laws in three months, without much of an idea, in some cases, of what the blessed things are about. A good many of our farming and manufacturing friends would really like to make good laws; but probably not one of them is competent to draw a bill that will hold together. To make it worse, these laws, good or bad, will come down forcibly on every man, woman and child in the state.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS.

The 2-cent rate bill has been quashed in the South Dakota legislature, so far as the present session at least is concerned.

Frank O. Briggs, the newly-elected senator from New Jersey, is a West Point graduate and a Grand Army veteran.

Elliot M. Majors, a former state senator of Missouri, has announced his candidacy for attorney general to succeed Mr. Hadley.

Joseph M. Sanders, president of the supreme court of appeals of West Virginia, has been announced by his friends as a candidate for governor on the Republican ticket.

Sonator Elmer J. Burkett of Nebraska has been selected by Vice-President Fairbanks to read Washington's farewell address to the Senate at the customary Washington's birthday exercises.

The lower house of the Missouri legislature has passed a bill prohibiting railroads from doing business in the state, and fixing a penalty of from $2,000 to $10,000 for each offense.

Congressman Butler Ames, of the Fifth Massachusetts district, is said to be already in training as an aspirant to the seat of Senator Lodge, whose term has still four years to run.

Leslie M. Shaw, who is to retire as Secretary of the Treasury next month, will, it is believed, become chairman of the board of directors of the Mississippi Valley Trust Company of St. Louis.

The Nebraska legislature has adopted resolutions of thanks to Representative C. L. France, of Otoe County, and Mrs. France for the splendid service they have rendered the state in bringing into the world fifteen children.

Congressman J. Adam Bede of Minnesota, one of the wits of the House, was a newspaper reporter in Washington for years. Originally a Democrat, he left that party in 1896 to support McKinley.

William Rudolph Bonkert of Davonport, Iowa, has issued a call for a convention to be held May 1 to organize the Christian party. He has constructed a platform which has in it the Ten Commandments, Prohibition, Government Ownership, Woman Suffrage and Uniform Divorce.

In connection with the Brownsville affair it is pointed out by political mathematicians that the negro holds the balance in Illinois, New Jersey, New York, Delaware, Connecticut, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

A. C. Shellenbarger, recently a candidate for United States senator from Nebraska, has been chosen to deliver the principal address at a Washington birthday banquet to be given by Kansas Democrat at Topeka.

Representative W. B. McKinley, of the Nineteenth district of Illinois, is said to be the wealthiest member of the Illinois delegation in the House. He is a farmer, as well as a banker, and has made his own way in the world.

PRESS COMMENT.

To Be Anticipated.
Green Bay Gazette: When the Thaw trial is over watch some ignoramus inaugurate the Evelyn pose or the May McKenzle walk.

Spared One Consolation.
Exchange: "Hell," says a New Jersey preacher, "is full of people who use tobacco." Well, so they are. allowed one comfort, anyhow.

John Bull Still Bikes.
Milwaukee Sentinel: Last year the British bicycle factory output exceeded that for any previous year. Sports are sports, not fads, with John Bull.

Needed at Home.
Milwaukee Journal: Let's see, wasn't there something in Becker's Bulletin last spring about "Sherbie's" agreeing to stay at home and attend to his job if the people chose him mayor?

Right to its Own Complexion.
Evening Wisconsin: In other words, the contention of the defense in the Watertown oleomargarine case is that oleomargarine has a constitutional right to appear in market in its natural complexion.

That's the Elks' Salutation.
Exchange: Although nothing official as to the matter has yet been promulgated, the pass word of the first "Bill Club" composed of men named William will probably be "Hello Bill."

Suspicious.
Oshkosh Northwestern: The Milwaukee Journal is evidently trying to create a stampede among the republicans of this state in favor of "immediate" tariff revision. The sincere approval accorded to this movement by The Journal is quite remarkable—and likewise rather suspicious.

Fills an Important Need.
Exchange: Whether or not Rockefeller is worth a billion he is certainly worth a few millions to the nation as a general scapegoat and target for remarks. Many a man in this country would have nobody to hate if he couldn't detest Rockefeller and the Standard Oil.

Menu Reform is Coming.
El Paso Herald: "Reform the menus" is the slogan among the New England hotel keepers who intend to make their bills of fare talk some one decent respectable language, either English or French, or perhaps Italian, but not all at once. Pure language is a legitimate sequel to pure food.

The Latest Bank Looting.
Green Bay Gazette: Just when the country was getting over the results of an epidemic of Stenodism this man Walker of the New Britain, Connecticut, Savings bank had to get caught in the act of stealing a half million. Always someone to butt in and spoil a good thing when it's at its best.

Accurately Descriptive.
Evening Wisconsin: The Milwaukee Free Press of this morning publishes an editorial headed "Cackle." The caption accurately describes the contents of the article, or at least with equal appropriateness be placed above many other articles which appear in all the bravery of double leads on the editorial page of the Free Press.

Lucky For Mrs. Menier.
Exchange: Count de Castellane denies the story that he is going to marry Madame Menier, divorced wife of the chocolate manufacturer. He says that "it is extraordinary that there are people in France who think that a Catholic can remarry while his former wife is living." It is fortunate for Madame Menier.

Modesty of Hughes.
Waupaca Post: Assemblyman Hughes has introduced a bill in the legislature forbidding the wearing of lights on the stage by women, unless they are covered by dresses which must reach four inches below the knees. Mr. Hughes must be one of those Anthony Comstock devotees who always go into another room when they want to change their minds.

Problem in Mathematics.
Galt (Mo.) Sun: An alderman pays a reporter $5 to write him a speech favoring the erection of a new schoolhouse, but after delivering 12 cents' worth of the speech he is told that there is no question before the house and is asked to sit down. In doing so he breaks a pair of suspenders worth 35 cents. How much is the great man out of pocket and how would the schoolhouse have been built if the whole of his speech had been delivered?

Amusing But Human.
Chicago Chronicle: It is said to be an invariable fact that when a commoner is elevated to the British house of lords he instantly becomes more jealous of the privileges of his order than are peers who trace their nobility back to the advent of William the Conqueror.

This is a trait in human nature which is exemplified down in New York state, where the osteopathic practitioners are asking the legislature to "protect them against unscrupulous pretenders." In other words, the osteopathic practitioners, having achieved liberty to practice, now want to make a sort of close corporation of their cult and prohibit from practicing any save the anointed graduates of certain specified colleges.

This is amusing, but it is strictly according to precedent for the "regulars" or "allopaths" strove successfully for years to keep the homeopaths from securing recognition.

Symptom That is Disquieting.
Chicago Chronicle: The number of arrests and prosecutions in Chicago for the offense of selling or circulating obscene pictures and literature constantly is a disquieting circumstance. All of these panders to the prurient have customers or they would not carry on business; and when we consider the number of such establishments that have been raided it is unpleasantly evident that there must be a great many people in this city who buy printed smut. The whole matter is calculated to sustain the theory held by a good many people that the American fiber is deteriorating. When a nation gets to the point where it encourages the licentious picture industry it is in a bad way morally.

Publicity May Help To Cure.
Sheboygan Journal: The truth is not always pleasant, but frequently the disagreeable features of the truth make it all the more effective. There are times when complete public exposure of some disagreeable or disgusting affair, or of some crime, is the only way to cure it. There is nothing like good strong sunlight to destroy disease germs.

This is one reason why the Thaw murder trial ought to be given publicity. The details as they have been printed from day to day have not been pleasant reading for persons of refinement. Even with the worst of the testimony cut out, which every respectable newspaper has done, most of the story has scarcely been fit reading.

But this very fact is the strongest reason why it should be printed. The Thaw trial has exposed a condition in a certain class of New York's "society" that is too rotten to be discussed. A world that to those on the outside looked all silk and gilt has been shown to be so vile that the whole nation is shocked. This particular section of New York "society" has been given an airing that will keep it wholesome for many a year. The men and women whose names have just missed publicity along with the principals in the trial have been given a scare that will prove a life lesson.

COMMERCIAL MEN TO INSPECT THE CANAL.
Representatives of Boston, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Businessmen's Clubs Sail.

New York, Feb. 18.—A party of representatives of the commercial clubs of Boston, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis sailed today on the Hamburg-American steamer Prince Joachim, specially chartered to take them on a cruise to Panama and various points in the West Indies. President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft have taken an active interest in the trip of the commercial club representatives and the government officials at Panama have been instructed to afford the visitors every facility for inspecting the work on the isthmian canal. The first stop of the Prince Joachim will be at Charleston, where other club members will be taken aboard. An opportunity will be given the tourists to see something of St. Thomas and Porto Rico. At Panama, as previously announced, there will be a land trip across the isthmus. On the return trip the Prince Joachim will put in at Kingston, Havana and Santiago.

BELOIT TO HAVE A FARMERS' INSTITUTE

O. A. Wheeler Who Came to County in 1842 Died Saturday Night—Other Notes.

Beloit, Wis., Feb. 18.—O. A. Wheeler, aged 63, a resident of Rock county for many years, died at 11:30 Saturday evening. He settled in Lima in 1842 and had resided there since with the exception of eight years spent in Whitewater, where he was engaged in the piano business.

Eugene Dell, son of C. Dell, drank a glass of gasoline yesterday, but his life was saved by prompt work of physicians.

C. H. Williams, Otto Phillips, and J. N. Garrigan, held on the charge of throwing coal into the Beloit Poultry Co. windows, were discharged today at the direction of District Atty. Fisher.

KILLED DAUGHTERS; COMMITTED SUICIDE

Connerville, Ind., Feb. 18.—Mrs. J. S. Mordelle, aged thirty-five, today killed her two daughters aged four years, and seven months, and then committed suicide, by cutting the jugular veins.

EVERY DAY A NEW ONE.

Forget Errors of Yesterday In the Possibilities of To-day.

Here is a pretty bit of optimistic philosophy, inspired by so ordinary an occurrence as the daily sunrise: "Did you know the sun rose every morning? There are many persons who do not know this important fact, or, if they do know, they do not act accordingly. These persons carry yesterday's burdens and successes and failures. The failures of yesterday should be forgotten, because they dishearten us for to-day. The successes of yesterday should not be remembered, because they will weigh against the larger possible successes of to-day. The burdens of yesterday should have been buried yesterday. That is one meaning of the sunrise. It shuts off yesterday. The sun rises as fair and bright and new this morning as though it had not risen anew every morning of these 6,000 years. It brings a new day with new opportunities. Yesterday is shut off from to-day by the curtain of the night; and the sun rises in the morning to usher in the new day. There are men in this town who are gray with the burdens of yesterday when they might be buoyant with the brightness of to-day's dawn. They have forgotten that the sun has risen."

CROW HAD $200 RING.
Feathered Pet's Liking for Bright Things Was Unfortunate.

A $200 diamond ring was stolen from Mrs. Herman Stoddard's bedroom, Verona, N. J., the black thief was killed, and the ring recovered.

Mrs. Stoddard loves birds. She calls her home "The Aviary." She feeds birds and builds homes for them on the estate. So they become quite fearless, but, of all, a crow has shown the greatest tameness and familiarity.

The windows of Mrs. Stoddard's room were open, her rings were on a dresser. A maid entered the room; the crow was on the dresser; it said "caw" pleasantly to the maid, flew out of a window and perched on a tree branch near. The maid told Mrs. Stoddard, who could not find her engagement ring, where she had left it. She was loath to believe that any of her pets was dishonest, but the crow was under such strong suspicion, that Adolph Schmidt shot it. He cut open its crop; there was the ring.

Around the bird's leg was a leather band with three links of a small brass chain, showing that it had been in captivity at some time.

Parting at the Station.
Those who listened as the man and woman parted at the station heard this conversation:

"Goodbye, dear."

"Goodbye. Don't forget to tell Bridget to have the chops for dinner."

"All right."

"And be sure and feed the canary."

"Sure."

"Lock up the silver every night."

"Very well."

"And don't forget that the gasman is coming to renew the burners. Be sure and have him put the four-foot burner in the servant's room."

"I'll remember."

"Order kindling wood on Wednesday."

"All right."

"Consult the list I made out if you forget anything."

"I will."

"Better not kiss me. People will think we are just married."

"Not if they have been listening."

Dentist's Shrewd Scheme.
A Lawrence dentist, according to the Kansas City Journal, has discovered a scheme for making his patients keep their mouths open. Almost every one has seen the picture which is rivaling "The Whole Dam Family," and is called "A Yard of Yawns." The picture is a yard long, containing the pictures of a whole family, each member of which, from great-granddad to the baby, is yawning violently. Yawning, as many people know to their sorrow, is violently contagious, and one person yawning has often set a roomful of people to yawning. The dentist simply has the picture hanging in view of the dental chair, and he says that all of his patients are constantly yawning.

Love and Love.
He—I love you!

She—But I have not a farthing in the world.

He—Ah! but you did not let me finish. I was going to say "I love you not."

She—Indeed! I only meant to put you to the test. The fact is I have a fortune of £60,000.

He—Yes, but you again interrupted me just now. What I meant to say was, "I love you not for the sake of your money."

She—So glad to hear you say that! It was all a joke about the £60,000!—Tit-Bits.

An Opportunity Slighted.
"Why don't you buy stock in that company?"

"It doesn't seem to me that the men running it have good business judgment. They say that in a month the price of the stock will be double."

"Yes?"

"Well, why don't they wait a month before selling it to me?"

Easily Satisfied.
"Notoriety is dearer than anything else to that man."

"Yes? He's all puffed up for an hour if he happens to see his name in the city directory."

"He Had to Acknowledge The Corn."

The other day a dental traveling man was in to see Dr. Richards to sell him some goods.

In visiting together the doctor showed him some of the beautiful work he is putting out among his patients.

And asked him point blank, "In your visits among other dentists here do you see any such beautifully finished work as I am doing?"

Of course the traveling man hesitated saying much considering the fact that he sold goods to all the dentists in the city.

But he did acknowledge that this work was more finely finished than any he had seen in Janesville.

"Now, the specimens shown him were not special cases but just regular finished work the same as Dr. Richards gives everybody."

You can fairly see your face reflected so fine in the polish he puts on his rubber plates. Now all this means extra work.

Extra care taken to give you the best there is.

And his prices are another attractive feature.

His patients never feel like calling him Dr. Big Fee.

Try him yourself for your next needed dental work.

CHARLES F. PAGE KILLED IN WRECK

NATIVE OF ROCK CO. AMONG VICTIMS OF N. Y. C. DERAILMENT.

MARRIED JANESVILLE GIRL

The Late Mida Culver Page Was His First Bride and Two Children Mourn His Loss.

Charles Fremont Page, a native and former well-known resident of Rock county, was among the score killed in the wreck of the New York Central electric suburban train above Bedford Park station, the Bronx, New York, Saturday evening. The accident occurred while the train was said by the motorman to be traveling forty-eight miles an hour. It is believed that a broken or loose rail and probably a broken wheel caused the derailment. The entire train of five cars left the track, pounded the ties for a long distance and then turned over.

Forty-three Years Old

Mr. Page was born at Indian Ford forty-three years ago and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Page. He received his early education in Rock county schools and then studied law. He married Miss Mida Culver of this city and moved to Mackinac, Minn., where he practiced before the bar for a number of years. His wife's health failed several years ago and they returned to the town of Fulton, but death soon claimed Mrs. Page.

Mr. Page then spent a year in Dakota and three years ago moved with his two children, Culver, now aged thirteen, and Jeanette, now eleven, to White Plains, N. Y. He had since made his home there, serving as secretary of the American Resort company of New York.

Wife and Sisters Living

A year ago Mr. Page was again married, his bride being Miss Evangeline Slosson of White Plains. She, the two children and two sisters survive him. His sisters are Mrs. D. Frank Sayre, Jr. of Fulton and Mrs. A. A. Miller of Crookston, Minn. Mrs. Sayre was in Janesville today and will depart for White Plains at 6:30 o'clock this evening. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will be on the same train. The funeral will be held Wednesday.

At the home of James Carle in Willowdale. The deceased was past four score years of age and leaves no near relatives. For many years he resided with his sister, Mrs. Balf, north of Janesville, but since her demise had lived the greater part of the time with Mr. Carle. Mr. Cassidy was one of the best-known bachelors in this part of the country.

Mrs. Fred Ullius. After a lingering illness of three years Mrs. Fred Ullius passed away this morning at her home in the town of Harmony. She was thirty-three years of age and leaves to mourn her death a son, six years old, a mother, Mrs. Lorentzen, living in Denmark, four sisters and five brothers. The funeral will be held from the home at half past one o'clock Wednesday afternoon and burial will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

Man Apprehended in Rockford Thursday Evening Finally Pronounced Violently Insane Yesterday.

Forty-eight hours at the county asylum failed to work any cure for August Ludolph of 407 South Jackson street, who was brought here from Rockford Thursday evening, and when a second examination was made by Drs. E. F. Woods and Q. O. Sutherland, yesterday it was evident that the patient was suffering with dementia in a violent form. He clawed and tore the padded cell at the jail to pieces and the officers had a difficult time in getting him to the 9:15 train bound for Madison last evening, straight-jacket. He was tied into the carriage and Under-sheriff Fisher in getting him aboard the train. The sheriff took him to the asylum at Mendota.

ALDERMAN W. W. WATT TO RESIGN TONIGHT

Has Definitely Decided to Take This Step by Reason of Mayoralty Campaign.

William W. Watt, candidate for the republican nomination for mayor, will tonight resign his position as alderman from the third ward. He is not compelled to do this but wishes to save the ward the embarrassment and expense of a special election in event he is chosen to fill the city's highest office. "I have definitely decided to resign and will withdraw from the council tonight," he said to a Gazette representative. Alderman Brockhaus is expected to introduce this evening a measure amending the charter so as to combine the two tax collections in Janesville into one. City Attorney Maxfield is expected to give opinions on the questions submitted at the last meeting involving the legality of allowing the mayor compensation for his services on the board of review and his expenses on the trip to the League of American Municipalities meeting in Ashland last summer.

MARTIN DOHS AGREES TO SUPPORT FAMILY

And is Released From the County Jail on This Understanding—Narrowly Escaped Prison.

Martin Dohs who was arrested in Rockford for wife desertion some time ago and wanted to plead guilty and go to prison, was finally released Saturday evening with the strict understanding that he should hereafter support and take care of his family. He signed an iron-clad agreement and if he breaks its provisions he may be taken into court at any time and sentenced.

Sup. Hanson of committee No. 2, submitted the report of district attorney and moved its adoption.

Janesville, Wis., Jan. 8, 1907.

To the Honorable County Board for Rock County:

I hereby beg leave to report, that from the first day of February, 1906, up to the first day of January, 1907, there was received by me, as district attorney for Rock county, Wisconsin, by virtue of my office, the sum of ninety-two and 50-100 dollars, ($92.50) which sum was the fine and costs in the case of the State of Wisconsin versus King. That such fine and costs were assessed in the police court by Judge Booth, formerly presiding over said court, and that an appeal was taken to the municipal court for Rock county, and that before the case was tried the defendant, King, appeared and paid the fine and costs, which fine and costs were turned over to me by Hon. Charles L. Fifield, judge of the said court, and which said fine and costs were by me paid to Oliver P. Smith, county treasurer for Rock county, and that I hold the receipt of the said county treasurer for such payment of ninety-two and 50-100 dollars. That this is the only sum of money that has been received by me as district attorney for Rock county, either as fines, forfeitures, penalties or costs. That all fines, forfeitures, penalties and costs having been paid, and the same having been paid during the above mentioned term, by the persons paying them directly to the various courts in which the various actions resulting in fines, forfeitures, penalties and costs were tried.

JOHN L. FISHER,
District Attorney for Rock County,
STATE OF WISCONSIN.

ss.
Rock County.

John L. Fisher, being first duly sworn on oath, deposes and says that the above and foregoing report by me made, is just, true and correct.

JOHN L. FISHER,
Subscribed and sworn to before me this 8th day of January, 1907.

WILSON LANE,
Notary Public for Wisconsin.

TWENTY-TWO DEAD
IN RAIL DISASTER

NEW YORK CENTRAL ELECTRIC
TRAIN IS WRECKED.

CARS FLUNG FROM TRACK

One Hundred and Forty-five Passengers Hurt—Victims, Nearly All Women, Terribly Mangled.

New York, Feb. 18.—Twenty-two dead; and 145 others more or less seriously injured; is the result of the wreck of an electric express train on the New York Central railroad at Webster avenue Saturday night.

Of the large number of injured, 50, according to hospital and police reports, are seriously hurt and the death list may be increased within the next 24 hours. Most of the others are suffering from lacerations or shock, and will recover.

Names of the Dead.

Following is a list of the dead:

Mrs. Florence Brady, Golden's Bridge, N. Y.

Miss Linie Ewell, stenographer, Hawthorne, N. Y.

Myron E. Evans, White Plains, N. Y.

Mrs. Katherine K. Farrand, Pleasantville, N. Y.

Miss Jessie M. Jubb, teacher, White Plains, N. Y.

Mrs. Mary Kinch, Chappaqua, N. Y.

Clara L. Hudson, 1775 Collar avenue west, Minneapolis, Minn.

Mrs. Annie H. McLain, widow, aged 60 years, sister-in-law of Superintendent of the Bloomingdale insane asylum.

Miss Annie Moorhead, Briar Cliff Manor, N. Y.

E. L. Page, White Plains, N. Y.

Cornelius Kelly, North Salem, N. Y.

Robert J. Rosborough, White Plains, N. Y.

Julia W. Storm, Bedford Station, N. Y.

Mrs. Isaac L. Webster, White Plains, N. Y.

Miss Bessie See, Pleasantville, N. Y.

Miss Annie Sievoni, servant, White Plains, N. Y.

Elsie D. Warren, 240 West End avenue, New York.

Mary Beals, aged 19 years, New York city.

Mrs. Dorothy W. Perrin, aged 30 years, New York city.

Mrs. E. F. Newcomb, aged 60 years, Pike, Wyoming county, New York.

Margaret Mahoney, Purdy Station, New York.

Unidentified girl, about 16 years of age.

Cars Hurlled from Track.

Four cars of the train, which was drawn by two big electric locomotives and running at high speed, left the track and plunged down an embankment.

The wreck occurred on a curve, and so great was the momentum of the train that the cars which left the track were dragged along the ties and shattered to bits. The rear coach, which was filled mainly by women, snapped from the train, rolled over and over and finally collapsed, a mass of splintered wood and twisted steel, while the bodies of dead and injured passengers were strewn for 100 yards along Woodlawn avenue.

Crowded with Women.

The train, which was made up of the two motors, a combination baggage car and smoker and four passenger coaches, left the Grand Central station at 6:13 o'clock. It was crowded with women on their way home from matinees, and with commuters for White Plains and points beyond.

After making the stop at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, the train was scheduled to run to White Plains without a stop. It had a clear track, and was making unusually fast time.

At Woodlawn avenue the four tracks run through a rocky cut and took a sharp curve. When the train reached the curve both motors and the smoking car swung safely around, but the cars following left the rails and plunging over on their sides with a terrific crash, tore up the tracks and after sliding 100 yards collapsed.

Dead Strewn on Track.

The dead and dying were strewn along the tracks. Many of the victims were almost unrecognizable. In being dragged along the cinders and coal dust had been so ground into their faces and the exposed parts of their bodies that it was with difficulty that the rescuers could tell whether they were white or black. Many of them had their clothing torn off and were almost nude when found.

Ambulances and surgeons from every hospital in Bronxborough and from Bellevue, and the police reserves from many stations were soon on hand and the work of rescue was carried on rapidly.

Cause of Wreck Unknown.

The cause of the wreck is still a matter of speculation. All Saturday night Inspector Flood of the police department, Coroner Schwannecke and Assistant District Attorney Smythe, together with other members of the district attorney's force, looked over the scene and sought to determine the cause of the derailment of the train. The result of their investigation may become known when the inquest is held Monday by the coroner.

The wreckage was completely cleared away Sunday. All four of the tracks of the New York Central through the rocky cut where the train left the rails and several of the cars went to pieces, had been cleared. The track on which the train was running and which was ripped up in the accident had been restored, the third rail replaced and traffic resumed.

With the clearing of the wreckage interest turned to what the authorities might do. Perhaps the most sig-

We Offer $1,000.

For a Disease Germ That Liquezone Cannot Kill.

This offer goes out with every bottle of Liquezone. Do you suppose we would do that if any known germ could resist it?

Liquezone is for those who believe that a germ disease calls for a germicide; that the germs must be killed before the trouble can end. You have doubtless tried the old ways, and you know the results. We ask you to try the new way; to try it at our expense. Use what millions have used and learn what they know about it. You are not fair to yourself until you do that.

What Liquezone Is.

Liquezone is a tonic-germicide, the virtues of which are

TROOPS GUARD THE VATICAN.

Anti-Clerical Demonstration by 15,000 Persons in Rome.

Rome, Feb. 18.—Fifteen thousand persons, among them 150 red-shirted Garibaldians, with 120 flags and 20 bands of music, participated Sunday in an anti-clerical demonstration in favor of France. The procession crossed the city and went to the monument of Giordano Bruno, the Italian philosopher who was burned at the stake by order of the Inquisition, where 30 wreaths were deposited. Afterwards the marchers went to the capitol and, despite their being prohibited doing so, entered the balcony of Michael Angelo, overlooking the hill, and planted the red republican flag and republican and socialist deputies delivered violent and anti-clerical speeches.

The government took energetic measures to avoid trouble. The whole garrison was under arms and all the streets leading to the Vatican were barred by troops.

Similar manifestations took place in all the leading Italian towns.

Steamers Collide at Naples.

Naples, Feb. 18.—The White Star line steamship Republic, Capt. McAuley, from Boston February 2, and Genoa February 14 for Naples, while entering the harbor here Saturday collided with the Italian steamer Cento America, from St. Thomas January 17. Nobody was injured, but a great panic ensued. Both steamers were considerably damaged.

Chirp of the Cricket.

According to a government naturalist crickets have a tendency to chirp synchronously, or in time with each other. It is said by this scientist that they chirp more rapidly in warm than in cold weather. The increase has even been rated at four chirps a minute for one degree Fahrenheit rise in temperature.

CHAPTER XVIII.

I Meet an Old Friend.

When I reached Glenarm House the next morning I found to my astonishment that the window I had left open as I scrambled out the night before was closed. I dropped my bag and crept to the front door, thinking that if Bates had discovered my absence it was useless to attempt any further deception. I was amazed to find the great doors of the main entrance flung wide, and in real alarm I ran through the hall and back to the library.

The nearest door stood open, and as I peered in, a curious scene disclosed itself. A few of the large cathedral candles still burned brightly in several places, their flames rising strangely in the gray morning light. Books had been taken from the shelves and scattered everywhere, and sharp implements had cut ugly gashes in the shelving. The drawers containing sketches and photographs had been pulled out and their contents thrown about and trampled under foot.

The house was as silent as a tomb, but as I stood on the threshold trying to realize what had happened, something stirred by the fireplace and I crept forward, listening, until I stood by the long table beneath the great chandelier. Again I heard a sound as of some animal walking and stretching, followed by a moan that undoubtedly was human. Then the hands of a man clutched the farther edge of the table and slowly and evidently with infinite difficulty a figure rose and the dark face of Bates, with eyes blurred and staring strangely, confronted me.

He drew his body to its height and leaned heavily upon the table. I snatched a candle and bent toward him to make sure my eyes were not tricking me.

"Mr. Glenarm; Mr. Glenarm," he exclaimed in broken whispers. "It is Bates, sir."

"What have you done; what has happened?" I demanded.

He put his hand to his head uncertainly and gasped as though trying to gather his wits.

He was evidently dazed by whatever had occurred, and I sprang round and helped him to a couch. He would not lie down but sat up, staring and passing his hand over his head. I saw a purple and black streak across his temple where a bludgeon of some sort had struck him.

"What does this mean, Bates? Who has been in the house?"

"It was early this morning," he faltered, "about two o'clock, I heard noises in the lower part of the house. I came down, thinking likely it was you, and remembering that you had been sick yesterday."

"Yes, go on."

The thought of my truancy was no balm to my conscience just then.

"As I came into the hall, saw lights in the library. As you weren't down last night the room hadn't been lighted at all. I heard steps, and some one tapping with a hammer."

"Yes; a hammer. Go on!"

It was, then, the same old story! The war had been carried openly into the house, but Bates—just why should

"Yes; a hammer. Go on!"

It was, then, the same old story! The war had been carried openly into the house, but Bates—just why should

"Then I ran in, grabbed one of the big candelabra from the table, and went for the nearest man." They were about to begin on the chimney-breast—it was Mr. Glenarm's pride in all the house, and that accounts for my being there in front of the fireplace. They rather got the best of me, sir."

"Clearly; I see they did. You had a hand-to-hand fight with them, and being two to one—"

"No; there were two of us, don't you understand, two of us! There was another man who came running in from somewhere, and he took sides with me. I thought at first it was you, sir. The robbers thought so, too, for one of them yelled, 'Great God; Glenarm's come back!' Just like that. But it wasn't you, sir, but quite another person."

"That's a good story so far; and then what happened?"

"I don't remember much more, except that some one sussed me with water that helped my head considerably, and the next thing I knew I was staring across the table, there at you."

"Who were these men, Bates? Speak up quickly!"

My tone was peremptory. Here was, I felt, a crucial moment in our relations.

"Well," he began, deliberately, "I dislike to make charges against a fellow man, but I strongly suspect one of the men of being—"

"Yes! Tell the whole truth or it will be the worse for you."

"I very much fear one of them was Ferguson, the gardener over the way. I'm disappointed in him, sir."

"Very good; and now for the other one."

"I didn't get my eyes on him. I had closed with Ferguson and we were having quite a lively time of it when the other one came in; then the man who came to my help mixed us all up,—he was a very lively person,—and what became of Ferguson and the rest of it I don't know."

There was food for thought in what he said. He had taken punishment in defense of my property,—the crack on his head was undeniable,—and I could not abuse him or question his veracity with any grace; not, at least, without time for investigation and study. However, I ventured to ask him one question:

"If you were guessing, shouldn't you think it quite likely that Morgan was the other man?"

He met my gaze squarely.

"I think it wholly possible, Mr. Glenarm," he replied at once.

"And the man who helped you—who in the devil was he?"

"Bless me, I don't know, sir! He disappeared. I'd like mighty to see him again."

"Humph! Now you'd better do something for your head. I'll summon the village doctor if you say so."

"No; thank you, sir. I'll take care of it myself."

"Very well. Now we'll keep quiet about this. Don't mention it or discuss it with any one."

"Certainly not, sir." He rose, staggering a little from weakness, but crossed to the broad mantel shelf in the great chimney-breast, rested his arm upon it for a moment, passed his hand over the dark wood with a sort of caress, then bent his eyes upon the floor littered with books, drawings and papers torn from cabinets and all splashed with tallow and wax from the candles. The daylight had increased until the havoc wrought by the night's visitors was fully apparent. The marauders had made a sorry mess of the room, and I thought Bates' lip quivered as he viewed the wreck.

"It would have been a blow to Mr. Glenarm; the room was his pride—his pride, sir."

He went out toward the kitchen, and I ran upstairs to my own room. I cursed the folly that had led me to leave my window open, for undoubtedly Morgan and his new ally, St. Agatha's gardener, had taken advantage of it to enter the house. Quite likely, too, they had observed my departure for Cincinnati, and this would undoubtedly be communicated to Picketing. I threw open my door and started back with an exclamation of amazement.

A stranger stood at my chiffonier, between two windows, calmly shaving himself. He was clad in a bath gown—my own, I saw with fury—and he hummed softly to himself as he seized the brush and applied it deftly to his upper lip.

Without turning he addressed me, quite coolly and casually, as though his being there was the most natural thing in the world.

"Good morning Mr. Glenarm! Rather damaging evidence, that costume. I suppose it's the custom in the country for gentlemen in evening clothes to go out by the window and return by the door. You might think the other way round preferable."

"Larry!" I shouted.

"Kick that door shut and lock it," he commanded in a sharp, severe tone that I remembered well, and just now welcomed—in him.

"How, my dear when—?"

"Never mind about me. I'm here—thrown the enemy off for a few days; and you may confess your own sins first, while I climb into my armor. Pray pardon the informality."

He seized a broom and began work upon a pair of trousers to which mud and briars clung tenaciously. His coat and hat lay on a chair; they, too, much the worse for rough usage.

S.S.S. PURELY VEGETABLE

Not only is a medicine valuable for its ability to cure disease, but the way in which it affects the system is a very important factor. When the system is infected with the germs of disease as in Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, etc., every particle of its recuperative strength is needed to assist in eliminating the poisons and impurities which are causing the trouble. It should not be dosed and treated with strong mineral mixtures and concoctions that further add to the burden, by disagreeably affecting the bowels, producing indigestion, or eating out the delicate linings and membranes of the stomach. The absolute vegetable purity of S. S. S. has always been one of the strongest points in its favor, and is one of the principal reasons for its being now the most widely known and universally used blood medicine on the market. It is made entirely of healing, purifying roots, herbs and barks of the forests and fields. These are selected for their well known curative properties, and are known at the same time to possess the qualities to build up and strengthen every part of the system by their fine tonic effect. Not only is S. S. S. the king of blood purifiers, but it is the one medicine that may be taken with absolute safety by young or old. We guarantee it non-injurious, and offer a reward of $1,000 for proof that it contains a particle of mineral in any form. S. S. S. is a safe and reliable treatment for Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, and any and all diseases arising from a poisoned or impure state of the blood. It goes to the very bottom of these troubles, removes every trace of disease, enriches and builds up the blood and permanently cures where mineral medicines fail. If you are suffering with any form of blood disease write for our book on The Blood and ask for any medical advice you may desire; no charge for either.

RAPID FIRE SELLING

THE BIG AUCTION SALE OF JEWELRY CONTINUES

With Unabated Interest. Sales open daily at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

There seems to be an ever increasing interest in this big public sale of high class Jewelry. The stock of F. C. Cook & Co. was well and favorably known, and the additional personal testimony of Mr. Cook as to the authenticity of the offerings inspires confidence and quells the harpings of those over-suspicious ones. There was $40,000 worth of fine Jewelry stock when this sale started, and even with the tremendous selling of the past week there still remain great quantities of the choicest goods.

GREATEST OPPORTUNITY FOR LUCKY STRIKES

You never have had a chance to secure fine jewelry at practically your own figure and probably never will again. Think of the opportunity for buying a beautiful diamond, gold watch, ring, pin, bracelet, solid silver, plated silver, cuff buttons, toilet sets, clock, umbrella, cut glass, carving set, brooch, silver piece, etc., etc. The lovers of bargains find in this sale an event of years.

We guarantee to do just as we advertise, and refer you to Mr. Cook personally as to any item you may purchase and are in doubt about. Every ring, diamond, watch and piece of gold or gold filled jewelry in the store is from the original stock of F. C. Cook & Co.; this is also guaranteed. Not a cheap or inferior article in the entire stock. Sale will continue until the goods are disposed of and upon request any article will be put up for sale. There are some items which have been exhausted but there are plenty yet to make your attendance worth your while.

The hurry in time has come—that is, if you wish to participate in the greatest bargain sale in the business history of Janesville or Rock County. Plenty of ladies took advantage of the silver sales this afternoon and there will be plenty of good things for them to bid on each day. There is no time for delay, however; if you want some of these bargains come in at once.

ROLLER SKATE CRAZE

The Great Sport of the Past Is Once More a Favorite.

THIS COUNTRY HAS 150 RINKS

The Present Boom Began in the Spring of 1905—English Cities in Year Previous Had Begun the Movement.

Twenty years ago roller skating was popular throughout the United States and Canada. Every town of 2,000 or more inhabitants had its rink, while the larger cities supported from two to six or eight.

Clubs were formed, and the sport bid fair to enjoy a long reign of popularity, but there was something lacking, and the attendance at the rinks dropped off by degrees until it became a nonpaying institution. Several efforts were made to revive the sport, but little or no success attended the efforts, and the promoters gave up the project in disgust.

It was not until the spring of 1905 that the general public gave any indication that the time was ripe for a revival. Many of the big cities in England had in the preceding year started a revival which met with generous support from the public, and America quickly followed the lead, with the result that success has attended the experiment far beyond the most sanguine expectations of the promoters of roller skating rinks. Where a hundred persons attended the sessions twenty years ago fully ten times that number can be seen on the floors of the rinks in all the big cities, while the percentage of increase is correspondingly great in the smaller towns.

A number of reasons can be advanced for this remarkable condition of affairs. The wonderful increase in the population, the prosperous condition of the country, which enables the average man or woman to indulge more frequently in the pursuit of re-with an average attendance of 1,000. Several of the big rinks, such as Madison Square Garden, New York, draw on an average of 2,000 a day. One notable feature about the present revival is the number of persons who enjoy the sport as mere spectators without actual participation in it. With the sport kept clean and healthy the present revival should continue for many years.

BUILD AN ICE YACHT.

Directions For Constructing a Safe and Speedy Ice Flier.

COST IS VERY MODERATE.

An Important Requirement is Sound, Well Seasoned Wood For Frame. Dimensions and Sail Plan—The Runners and Other Necessaries.

It is not a difficult nor an expensive matter to build a safe and fleet ice yacht. Observe the following directions in general, mixed with a modicum of common sense, and you will succeed.

The best kinds of wood are basswood, whitewood, butternut, pine and spruce. The spars should be of spruce and should be hollow, if possible.

The center timber or backbone should be a well seasoned pine stick, measuring at least twenty-two and a quarter feet long by ten inches by four and a half inches.

PLAN OF COCKPIT AND RUNNER.

Care should be taken to see that there are no flaws or knots in this responsible stick. It bears the same relation to the ice yacht as a keelson does to the sailing craft.

Crossing this backbone, eight and a half feet aft of its foremost point, is the runner plank, which is twelve and a half feet long by thirteen by six inches.

These two pieces give a foundation in the form of a cross, the backbone being the upright and the runner plank the extending arms.

is constructed the cockpit or flooring, upon which the yachtsmen sit. This is formed by nailing strips of pine board, three-quarters of an inch thick and four inches wide, across the heavy centerpiece.

Spars next must be considered. Make the mast sixteen feet one and a half inches tall, the main boom seventeen feet nine inches long, the gaff nine feet and the jibboom six feet nine inches.

Seven feet aft of the forward end of the backbone the mast should be stepped, set upon an iron plate with a raised surface to fit into a prepared concave in the foot of the spar.

For the ice yacht it has been found that the simple sloop rig and not the lateen is the best. This gives ample sail area without multiplicity of sails.

THE TWO STYLES OF SAILS FOR ICE YACHTS.

and sheets to be attended to in half raising dashes of lightning speed over frozen surfaces.

The mainsail, then, should have a boom length of seventeen feet and a hoist uplift—that is, the height adjoining the mast—of ten feet.

At least eight feet nine inches should be the length of the gaff, and, by the way, to secure the best results the gaff should be peaked or elevated to an angle of sixty-four degrees. The leech, that aftermost stretch of the mainsail reaching from gaff and to boom end—should measure twenty-three feet.

Along its stay guy the jib should measure twelve and three-fourths feet, with six and one-half feet at the foot and ten and one-half feet along the hoist, or inner reach.

When $60 is mentioned as the cost of such an ice yacht, the figures are taken from the estimate of an expert who believed in having everything of the best.

Few Call Attention to It. You never hear a man who had only $50 when he was married boasting about it before his yearly income passes the $10,000 mark.

SAYS SERVICE IS HONEST AND LOYAL

REPORT ON PENNSYLVANIA RY. OFFICIALS AND EMPLOYEES.

ONLY 15 FOUND AT FAULT

They Accepted Interests in Corporations—Charge of Favoritism to Certain Shippers is Denied.

New York, Feb. 18.—"A mistaken public opinion, misinformed as to the facts because of the publication of portions, and not the whole, of the testimony of the witnesses before the interstate commerce commission, and, therefore, basing its conclusions upon insufficient premises, has done grave injustice to the whole service of the Pennsylvania Railroad company. That service is of more than 60 years' growth; it is constituted, in the main, of educated, trained and self-respecting men, whose honorable lives have won the esteem of those who know them best; it has its traditions of loyalty, and it has had, in its successive officers, examples of unselfish devotion to duty and steadfast adherence to the right."

This in brief is the report of the special committee appointed by the board of directors of the Pennsylvania railroad company nearly a year ago to examine into the facts connected with the acquisition and ownership by officers and employees of the company of stock or other interest in any company the holding of which could affect the performance of their duty or the company's duty to the public.

Fifteen Had Taken Gifts. The alleged acceptance of gratuities by employees of the company was also inquired into by the committee. As a result of its examination of 2,508 officers and employees, including every officer of the several companies whose individual action or whose order to any subordinate could effect any discrimination, the committee reports it found that 266 had interests in coal or other corporations or firms, or with individuals. With the exception of 15, all of these had acquired their interest by purchase. The 15 admitted that they had received gifts of shares, or interests, in various corporations, and their names have been reported to the presidents of the several railroad companies for appropriate action.

No Favoritism to Shippers. Allegation of favoritism to certain shippers of freight, mainly coal, and treated at considerable length by the committee, which sums up the results of its investigation of this subject with the statement that "there is not, and has not been on the part of the railroad company, any discrimination as between shippers in the facilities given for the exercise for that legal right."

Much of the trouble which led to the allegations, the committee believes was due to the so-called "individual cars." In 1906 there were 27,500 individual cars in service on the Pennsylvania railroad. For the use of these cars, the railroad pays six mills per mile, loaded or empty, and charges the regular freight on the loaded cars. The individual cars caused suspicions of preference.

Church Pays Girl's Debt. Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 18.—The members of the Second Christian church Sunday contributed $1,900 to cover the shortage of $1,300 in the accounts of Helen Dixon, the young woman, custodian of the organ fund.

Miss Dixon, who was indicted by the grand jury for embezzlement, forgery and larceny, took $1,300 which had been raised for the purchase of the new church organ.

New Theory of Sleep.

Sir William Gowers has recently developed a new theory of sleep. According to his explanation, the suspension of consciousness in sleep is probably due to a "break and make" action among the brain cells. The activity of the brain is considered to be due to nerve cells, from which spring nerve cords that go on dividing and subdividing until they terminate in little knobs. Formerly it was believed that the nerve cells of the brain were in permanent connection by means of their terminals; but now it appears that these are only in opposition and capable of being separated. The hypothesis is that during sleep such separation takes place, and the fact that narcotic substances are capable of inducing sleep is held to support this view.

Unsportsmanlike Prayer. Old Roman sportsmen sought by every means, human and superhuman, to win their chariot races. Douglas Sladen, in his "Carthage and Tunis," tells how the archaeologists have recovered various imprecations used by owners of racing chariots and buried in tombs before the races. Here is an example: "I adjure thee so bind the hands, the head and the heart of Victorius to-morrow as I hold this cock-bound. Bind also the members of the horses which he may drive, hinder them from springing forward, precipitate their driver from the chariot, so that he may be dragged across the hippodrome."

The Formidable Bent Pin. "Huh!" scornfully snorted the nickel-plated safety pin. "You are not in the same class with me." "Oh, you haven't any cause to be stuck up," retorted the ordinary pin. "Speaking of classes, some of us have occupied chairs in the foremost schools and colleges."

BIRD HUNT IN MID-OCEAN. Valuable Penguin Chased Over Decks and Recaptured.

A penguin hunt during a winter storm in the mid-Atlantic was one of the odd experiences of R. E. Jones, who returned yesterday from a bird buying trip abroad, says the Minneapolis Journal. Commissioned to buy the stock for the great aviaries at Big Island park, Mr. Jones was returning with some 50 out of the 2,000 birds he had purchased at the various markets in England and on the continent. His traveling proteges were lashed in small crates on the upper deck in the lee of the smokestacks.

One morning, when the seas were running high and no passengers dared to venture upon the decks a crate containing a penguin broke loose, crashed down to a lower deck and broke open. Mr. Penguin promptly emerged from the debris and started on a tour of exploration. It happens that penguins are not available in the market every day; this specimen being one of two which Mr. Jones bought on the London docks of a sailor just in from Africa. Consequently he saw that heroic steps were to be taken at once if one of his rarest birds was to be saved. In imminent danger of being washed away by the big combers, he and a sailor chased the escaped prisoner over the sloping, slippery decks until the bird was again safely caged and stowed away.

FISH THAT SWALLOW SAND. Ocean Denizens Which Load Their Stomachs With Ballast.

An official of the fish commission at Washington, states that captains of fishing smacks in the North sea have found that codfish at certain times of the year take sand into their stomachs as "ballast." This, it would appear, is done when the fish are about to migrate from the shallow water covering the southern banks of the North sea to the deeper water farther north.

It has been observed that fish caught on the southern banks just before the migration begins and those caught in the northern waters after it is completed have sand in their stomachs, and that the sand is discharged after the arrival of the fish at the southern banks on the return migration.

In proof of this it is stated that the sand found in the fish often differs in color and quality from that of the bottom where they are caught.
